SUBJECT : Office of Security War and Emergency Planning

REFERENCES : a. Office of Security War and Contingency Plan, 1959
b. Summary of Office of Security War and Contingency Plan (1955-1961)

1. It is considered necessary that the Office of Security War and Emergency Planning be reviewed and updated at this time to insure consistency with current Agency plans which have undergone certain changes since publication of the initial OS plan in 1959. To accomplish this task all OS elements, as in the past, are being asked to furnish contributions within their area of interest and to include additional aspects as desired.

2. The principal task at this time is to re-examine current Security requirements, responsibilities and plans in terms of events, circumstances and experience in supporting emergencies to date and update OS plans as needed. Essentially this is a re-examination of the specific security support requirements (tasks or jobs), policies, methods and guidelines for action during emergencies. Further, it is a review of what should be done from a security point of view in preparation for emergencies. This review is in line with similar action and study being carried on by other Agency components.
